Beneficial owners resident outside Ireland are required by the Irish Revenue Commissioners to make the following declaration, which is in a format authorized by them, in order to receive payments without deduction of Irish tax.

I/We declare that:

- I/We have read the explanation of the terms detailed in the note entitled "Residence Definitions" attached;
- I am/We are/The company is the beneficial owner in respect of which this Declaration is being made;
- I am/We are/The company is not resident or ordinarily resident in Ireland.

If you are making this Declaration whilst in the process of setting up your policy, setting up a series of regular withdrawals or making a first partial encashment:

I/We/The company hereby undertake to inform the insurance company of any change in my/our/the company's country of residence during the life of the policy

Residence Definitions

An individual will be regarded as being resident in Ireland for a tax year if he/she:

- Spends 183 days or more in the State in that tax year; or

- Has a combined presence of 280 days in the State, taking into account the number of days spent in the State in that tax year together with the number of days spent in the State in the preceding year.

Presence in a tax year by an individual of not more than 30 days in the State will not be reckoned for the purpose of applying the two-year test. Presence in the State for a day means the personal presence of an individual at any time during that day.

Ordinary Residence – Individual

The term “ordinary residence” as distinct from “residence” relates to a person’s normal pattern of life and denotes residence in a place with some degree of continuity. An individual who has been resident in the State for three consecutive tax years becomes ordinarily resident with effect from the commencement of the fourth tax year. An individual who has been ordinarily resident in the State ceases to be ordinarily resident at the end of the third consecutive tax year in which he/she is not resident. Thus, an individual who is resident and ordinarily resident in the State in 2004 and departs from the State in that year will remain ordinarily resident up to the end of the tax year in 2007.

Residence – Company

A company which has its central management and control in Ireland (the State) is resident in the State irrespective of where it is incorporated. A company which does not have its central management and control in Ireland but which is incorporated in the State, is resident in the State except where:

- The company or a related company carries on a trade in the State and either the company is ultimately controlled by persons resident in EU Member States or countries with which the Republic of Ireland has a double taxation treaty, or the company or a related company are quoted companies on a recognized Stock Exchange in the EUR or in a tax treaty country.

- The company is regarded as not resident in the State under a double taxation treaty between the Republic of Ireland and another country.

It should be noted that the determination of a company’s residence for tax purposes can be complex in certain cases and declarants are referred to the specific legislative provisions which are contained in Section 23A Taxes Consolidation Act, 1997.
